

Fleet management

The structure behind fleet claims.

From incident to insight. Full control.

Fleet operations generate a continuous flow of claims across vehicles, drivers and regions. Without a central approach, handling quickly becomes fragmented. Data is spread across systems, trends remain unclear and costs increase over time.

Fleet claims are not isolated events. They follow patterns. Understanding frequency, root causes and impact is essential to improve performance and reduce risk. Without reliable data and consistent handling, opportunities for optimisation are missed and decisions remain reactive.

Your trusted partner in fleet claims

Van Ameyde combines structured claims handling with data-driven insight. We manage claims consistently across regions while delivering clear reporting on trends, root causes and areas for improvement. This connects daily operations with strategic decision-making.

For fleet owners and insurers, the impact is immediate. Claims are handled faster, costs decrease and visibility across the entire fleet improves. You gain control over both performance and risk, supported by reliable data and consistent processes.

With proven expertise and advanced platforms, Van Ameyde turns fleet claims into actionable insight. Because in fleet management, control is not just about handling claims - it is about understanding them.
